

Rags-to-Riches Apron

You may not have a fairy godmother, but with a flip of this double-sided apron you can be transformed from rags to riches in an instant. Just make sure to switch it back before midnight!

You will need:

- Iron
- Scissors
- Needle
- Cotton thread (white and blue)
- White, brown and light-blue fabric each 30 x 42 cm (11 x 17 in)
- 2 pieces of silky blue fabric 42 x 59 cm (16½ x 23¾ in)
- 3 strips of tulle 50 x 15 cm (20 x 6 in), plus extra for ties
- Blue ribbon 1 m (40 in) long
- Iron-on adhesive

Making the ball gown

The ball gown side of the apron has a blue skirt parted to reveal a fluffy layer of tulle, with a light-blue base underneath.

- 1 Thread the needle with blue thread.

- 2 Starting from the edge, thread the needle at wide intervals through one of the pieces of silky blue fabric.

- 3 Pull the thread to gather the top of the fabric.

- 4 Secure the thread with a few stitches on top of each other, so it doesn't come undone.

- 6 To make the tulle layer, start by threading the needle with white thread.

- 7 Gather the tops of the three strips of tulle, as you did with the blue fabric in steps 2 to 3.

- 8 Sew the three tulle strips onto the light-blue fabric.

Each strip of tulle is ruffled.

Bring everything together

Once you have the two sides to your apron, you need to join them together and add ribbon so you can wear it.

- 1 Stitch the top of the two silky fabric pieces over the tulle, along the top of the light-blue base.

- 2 Stitch the top of the brown-and-white side to the top of the light-blue one.

- 3 Ask an adult to bond the ribbon on top of the ball gown side using iron-on adhesive.

- 4 Bond the bottom of the ball gown side to the light-blue base.

- 5 Cut two small strips of tulle.

Start with the rags

Cinderella wears a brown-and-white apron when she's doing her chores. It is very ragged from lots of use!

- 1 Ask an adult to iron your fabric to make sure it's crease-free.

- 2 Tear a rip in the white fabric, to make the apron look worn out.

- 3 Place the white fabric on top of the brown fabric.

Fold the top edge of the white fabric to stop it fraying.

- 4 Using the needle and white thread, stitch the two pieces of fabric together along the top edge and for 2 cm (¾ in) at the top of each side.
