

Paint-Splatter Fireworks

When Mulan defeats the Hun leader, she sets off a tower full of fireworks. The whole Imperial City watches the display! Create your own dazzling fireworks show with paint.

You will need:

- Scrap paper
- Black or dark-blue paper
- Reusable plastic straw
- Paint in different colours
- Paintbrush
- Glitter (optional)
- Red paper (optional)
- Glue (optional)

Light up your picture

This paint-splatter technique uses a straw and your own breath to create a unique pattern.

1 First of all, practise blowing paint on a piece of scrap paper. If your paint is too thick, add water to make it thinner.

2 Drop a small spot of paint onto your paper using a paintbrush.

3 Hold the straw over the spot of paint.

4 Blow through the straw to spread out the paint.

5 Experiment with different ways of breathing on scrap paper. Generally, short, sharp blows of air work best for firework shapes.

6 Wash your straw out before changing paint colour.

7 Once you're happy with the shapes you're getting, repeat these steps on your final paper.

8 Repeat as many times as you want, using different colours of paint.

9 You could cut a silhouette shape, such as the Imperial Palace, out of paper and glue it to the foreground of your picture.

DID YOU KNOW?

Fireworks were invented in China.

TRY THIS!
Why not make this type of picture to celebrate Chinese New Year?