

Mushu Shadow Puppet

Mushu the tiny dragon knows the power of his shadow. When he reveals himself to Mulan, he uses it to seem much bigger and fiercer than he is. He's the perfect character for a shadow puppet!

You will need:

- Tracing paper
- Pencil
- Scissors
- Red cardstock
- Hole punch
- Paper fastener
- Wooden dowels
- Clear tape
- A light, such as a torch or a lamp

Prepare your puppet

Storytelling with shadow puppets is an ancient tradition. Once you've made Mushu, you can perform endless shows.

- 1 Trace the templates on page 62 and copy them onto red cardstock. Carefully cut the pieces out.

If you want to strengthen your puppet, glue extra layers of cardstock to your shapes.

- 2 Use a hole punch to make a single hole in the top of each arm and the shoulder of the main body.

- 3 Push the paper fastener through the front of the body piece and the arm pieces, then open and flatten out the splits.

You can reposition the dowels to get different movements from your puppet.

- 4 Tape wooden dowels to the two hands.

Paper fastener allows arms to move separately from the body.

Experiment with the distances of the puppet and light source from the wall.

- 5 Turn off the lights and position your puppet in front of your light source to create a shadow on the wall.

- 6 Practise using the dowels to manipulate the puppet – then you're ready to perform!
