

Dodgeball

Dodgeball is a fun team sport where players try to hit their opponents with a ball, while avoiding being hit by balls thrown at them by opponents.

How to play

Two teams of six try to get as many of the other team's players out as they can.

Players throw balls at the other team. If the ball hits an opponent, they are out; but, if they catch the ball, the player who threw it is out.

If a player steps outside the court or crosses into the other team's half, they are out.

Players can save a teammate if they catch the ball that hit them before it touches the ground.

Games usually last for three minutes. The team with the most players left wins.

Players are only allowed to hold the ball for five seconds. If they hold it for longer, they have to give it to the other team.
