

World-class chess champions are called "grandmasters."

Bishop

Queen

King

Bishops can travel any distance, but must move diagonally.

Different directions

Each piece can only move in a certain way. The queen is the most powerful piece, because she can move any distance in any direction.

In 1886, Wilhelm Steinitz, who was born in modern-day Czech Republic, became the first official chess world champion.

Chess history

Chess is thought to come from the Indian game chaturanga, which was first played around 1,500 years ago. The official rules used today were decided in the 1880s.

In the Middle Ages, chess was used to teach war strategy.
