

Formula One

Formula One is a fast, thrilling racing sport. Drivers race and are awarded points for the position they finish in. The driver with the most points at the end of the season is the champion.

A Formula One car can cost $10 million!

Monaco Grand Prix

Fast-paced racing

Races are called “Grand Prix,” which means “large prize” in French. Each Grand Prix is held on a different track, which can vary a lot. For example, the Monaco Grand Prix is held around twisty streets, while the Italian Grand Prix has long straights to speed down.
