

Bixi is a turtle-shaped dragon with sharp teeth. He is very strong and able to carry heavy objects. Statues of Bixi are often found in courtyards and temples.

Chaofeng can be seen perching on the edges of roof ledges, warding off evil spirits and looking for adventures.

Nine dragon sons

The number nine is an important number in Chinese culture. These dragons are the nine sons of the mythical Dragon King, and appear as statues or carvings around China.

Yazi is known for destruction, so is usually found carved into the handles of swords and other weapons.

Qiuiniu has a love of music, and is sometimes carved on musical instruments.

