

Help me feel at home

As a native of the tropical forests of Brazil, I love indirect light and humidity. My color intensity is enhanced if I am not in full sun. You can also replicate my forest home by grouping me with other plants or placing me in a tray of wet pebbles to boost humidity levels.

Let's make babies

Propagating me is easy. Simply make a stem cutting below my leaf and place it in a jar filled with water until it roots. My baby can then be planted in fresh potting soil, where it will grow fairly quickly.

My flowers are a rare treat

I can grow dainty pink-white tubular flowers, borne on stems to elevate them above my foliage, although they are very rare when I'm grown as a houseplant.
