

BLUE TORCH CACTUS

Pilosocereus azureus

Native to Brazil, this beautiful cactus has upright stems of turquoise embellished by translucent golden needles. Although it gets big in its natural habitat, its slow-growing nature is ideal for indoor pots, and it will be your cool, calming, steadfast friend for many years.

“I’m soothingly serene and long-lasting.”

Help me thrive

POSITION

Will grow best in full sunlight in warm or hot temperatures of 70°F (20°C) or higher and preferably not below 60°F (15°C).

POTTING

Use a standard free-draining cactus mix. Cacti always look better in clay pots—they are heavier and help prevent them from toppling over.

GROWTH RATE

Vigorous and fast growing, it will quickly reach a height of 12in (30cm), but in the right conditions, it can reach 3ft (1m) or more.

CARE

Water weekly in spring and summer with rainwater or distilled water, but don’t overwater since it may cause rotting. Keep drier in winter.

I’ll be an enduring friend

Age and resilience are my best assets. Because I am easy to keep and grow slowly, I am likely to enjoy a long life and will be with you for years, becoming a well-loved member of the family—just be careful of my spikes and keep me away from young children.

Make a feature of me

Place me somewhere prominent, and, with my blue hue and candlelike appearance, I will prove an intriguing talking point for visitors.

My blooms develop into fleshy fruits
