

AFRICAN VIOLET

Saintpaulia hybrids

My gran grew these cute little plants—her windowsills were full of them—so I always knew what gift to buy for her. It's such an easy plant to care for and will consistently reward you with vibrant flowers. With so many different types and colors to collect, there is always something new to make you smile.

I will cheer you up

Although I can flower at any time of year, it's usually between midfall and early spring, bringing some color and warmth to the colder months. I am commonly found in dark purple tones, which, as a mix of red and blue, strikes the perfect balance between energizing and relaxing.

“I am a cute little plant bursting with flowers.”

Help me thrive

POSITION

Thrives in warm, humid conditions, above 60°F (15°C), and out of direct sunlight in summer. Give it the brightest light available in winter.

POTTING

Repot at least once a year, but use virtually the same container size, since it flowers better when the roots are tightly packed.

GROWTH RATE

Most hybrids are relatively small and slow growing, reaching heights and widths of around just 6in (15cm).

CARE

Allow soil to dry out before watering. Feed fortnightly with a liquid fertilizer high in potassium and phosphate. Water occasionally in winter.
