

Get to know me

I come in many different varieties, including 'Escargot' with its snail-like spiral-shaped foliage; the deeply colored 'Jurassic Rex' with its serrated leaf edge; the dark and moody 'Shadow King'; and the bright and fruity variety called 'Cherry Mint.'

I'm a fussy drinker

With too little water, I wilt quickly, and if left sitting in water, I can rot.

Please water me little and often, without letting water sit on my leaves for too long. I'd also prefer it if you used rainwater or distilled water.

Taste my flowers

My delicate flowers are small, pink, and also edible, with a refreshing taste. They have a zesty lemony, and peppery flavor, which comes from the oxalic acid in the petals. Do be aware, though, that oxalic acid can be toxic in large quantities.

Let's make babies

I am great at making baby plants. Just cut off one of my leaves, slice through some of my veins with a sharp knife, and lay me flat onto moist compost, weighing me down with stones to ensure I make good contact with the soil. Where a vein was cut, new plants will appear.

BE AWARE: I can be harmful if eaten, so keep me away from young children and pets.
