

This delicate fern will rustle gently in the breeze

Maidenhair fern ▲ Adiantum raddianum

The soft, calming foliage of this fern flutters in the breeze like butterflies' wings. In a hanging basket, where it can flow freely over the pot, it will create a soothing feature as the bright yet relaxing green fronds sway and rustle above you. See pp.34–35

The weeping fig has a flowing habit that will soothe

Peace lily ▼ Spathiphyllum

The peace lily has a pure white spathe that evokes a sense of harmony and tranquility. Its purpose is to protect the true flowers, but it also contrasts beautifully with the glossy green foliage. In your home, these soothing colors will help ease those feelings of stress and strain. See pp.126–127

The spathe of the peace lily is calming

◀ Weeping fig Ficus benjamina

The fluid, arching stems of the weeping fig seem to flow like trickling water, emulating a waterfall captured in the moment. Standing like a tree in your home, it will bring the outside world inside to help you relax and feel connected to nature. The green foliage promotes feelings of calmness and safety, which in turn will give a sense of peacefulness. See pp.82–83