

PLANTS TO ENERGIZE AND ENTHUSE

The sight of bright, engaging colors can fire up our emotions and boost our energy. Reds, oranges, and yellows are lively and uplifting, and when mixed with the dynamic shapes of the more flamboyant houseplants, they can stimulate while connecting us with nature.

Urn plant ►

Aechmea fasciata

This plant is like a firework captured mid-eruption, with the magical contrast of the silver and green foliage against the central pink bracts, which are joined by small purple flowers sprouting from the core. The explosion of color will fill you with excitement and exhilaration and add some natural color to your interior.

See pp.36–37

The color explosion of the urn plant will fire up the senses

Flamingo flower ▼

Anthurium andraeanum

The recognizable bracts of the flamingo flower are bright red—a color of passion and action that stirs strong emotions. Having this vibrant bloom in the house will stimulate and energize. Of course, it's also the color of romance, and the bracts are heart-shaped, so it's a symbolic gift for that special someone. See pp.42–43

