

I have a positive energy

Me and my sister species of fig trees have been thought to possess positive power since ancient times and are important in many religions, including Islam, Hinduism, and particularly Buddhism, as Buddha was said to gain enlightenment under a fig tree.

Get to know me

I am from the mulberry family and have been around for a really long time—there are fossilized remains of me that date as far back as 60 million years. I am called a weeping fig because of my drooping habit. My foliage can fall like tears if I am stressed.

BE AWARE: My sap can be harmful, so keep me away from children, pets, and anyone allergic to latex.
