

Ask an adult to cut a 2cm ($\frac{3}{4}$ in) thick slice off the top of the tomatoes and scoop out the insides. Save the tops for later.

The salt draws out excess liquid.

Sprinkle salt into the tomatoes and turn them upside down. Meanwhile heat 1 tbsp of oil in a small pan and cook the onion and garlic over low heat for 2-3 minutes until soft.

Preheat the oven to 200°C (400°F/Gas 6). Squeeze the meat out of the sausage skins into a bowl. Mix in the onion, garlic, herbs, then season.

Rinse out the salt, then stuff the mixture into the tomatoes. Put the tops back on, drizzle with the remaining oil, and cook for 45 minutes.