

Dirty water is filtered through several layers of different materials.

The experiment will produce cleaner water—but not good enough for you to drink.