

A CAVE OF YOUR OWN

Most real stalactites form in limestone caves that are made when underground rivers or rainfall dissolve large spaces in the rock. But your stalactites will grow perfectly well in a cardboard box—and you can make them any color you like, too. You won't beat natural stalactites for size, though: the world's biggest are several feet long!

You can create stalactites in any color—or add neon food coloring to make them glow under black light!
