

HOW TO MAKE BATH FIZZIES

To prepare your bath fizzies, you need to mix two dry chemicals—cream of tartar and baking soda—which react together only once they are immersed in water. Mix them with olive oil to form a moisturizing layer on your skin, a dash of essential oils for a rich fragrance, and food coloring to add some color.

WHAT YOU NEED

Molds (silicone works best)

Large bowl

1 cup cream of tartar

1/3 cups baking soda

Water in a spray bottle

Essential oils, such as lavender

Two teaspoons olive oil

Teaspoon

Tablespoon

Food coloring

Time

30 minutes plus
two days to dry

Difficulty

Medium

1 Measure the olive oil and pour it into the large bowl. The oil helps to bind the ingredients and, once in the bath, it will moisturize your skin. Add the baking soda, cream of tartar, and a few drops of essential oils, such as lavender.

2 Put at least 15 drops of food coloring into the bowl: the color becomes paler as the powders absorb the food coloring. You'll know this is happening when tiny drops form on the surface.
