

MAKE AN IMPRESSION

The experiment shows you how to make a fossil shell with plaster and then paint it to look incredibly old. But you can use whatever natural object you like as a model. The other "fossil" you see here is a dried starfish. Keep your eyes open when you go to the park or for a walk on a beach. There'll be plenty of things to choose from.

The image shows two artificial fossils on a sandy surface. At the top is a spiral shell fossil, and at the bottom is a starfish fossil. Both are painted in shades of brown and red to look like ancient fossils. Two paintbrushes, one with a wooden handle and one with a yellow handle, are lying on the sand to the right. An arrow points from the text to the starfish fossil.

Bury your fake fossils and see if your friends can find them, just like real fossil hunters!
