

Just add whatever beads
you can find: the more colorful they are, the better the effect.

A REFLECTION OF BEAUTY

The beautiful patterns you see when looking down a kaleidoscope are formed when light passes through colorful objects at one end and bounces off reflective surfaces inside. In a store-bought kaleidoscope, the reflective surfaces are mirrors, but your homemade one using a plastic sheet will produce a terrific display, too.