

The Appian Way leading out of Rome

Roman roads

The Romans built many long, straight roads to link the towns and cities of the empire. These paved roads helped soldiers move quickly around the empire.

