

Eating out

The ship's cook made food for the crew using fresh fish, salted meat, cheese, and dried peas.

Columbus's first Atlantic crossing took 70 days. A ship today can do this in 7 days.

Quick quiz

Where did Columbus think he had landed?

What did Columbus's crew eat?

What was on the afterdeck?

Food supplies

Below deck was the main storage area, with barrels of water and wine, beans, and a kind of biscuit called hardtack.

Self defense

The area called the afterdeck had two cannons, in case the ship was attacked.