

It was as if God had opened a window in heaven and poured water out. Rain cascaded from the sky, filling all the valleys. Thunder rumbled and lightning flashes cracked the sky in two.

For 40 days and 40 nights, rain drummed on the roof of the ark. Then one morning everything was quiet. The rain had stopped and the sun was shining again.

