

By the evening there were about five thousand people there and no-one had anything left to eat.

“It is time to send the people away,” said the disciples.
“They must find food.”

“Ask if anyone in the crowd has any food,” said Jesus.

After a long search, the disciples found a little boy who had just arrived with his picnic. They brought him to Jesus. “This is all we can find,” they told him.

