

Spoilt for choice

A vegetable is a plant or part of a plant that is grown to be eaten. This includes fruit, seeds, roots, and leaves, such as beans (seeds) and carrots (roots). But there is no one plant that we can eat every part of.

