

Dressed to impress

Opera singers wear incredible costumes to play their parts. In The Cunning Little Vixen their makeup is amazing, too.

Crowded stage

Operas sometimes have spectacular stage sets and, as well as the soloists, a large group of singers, called the chorus.

A choice of voices

The soprano is the highest female voice. It is a brilliant and exciting sound.

The contralto, or alto, has a slightly lower voice than the soprano. It has a warmer tone.

The tenors sing many of the important male songs in an opera.

The bass sings the lowest notes. His voice is deep and strong.

Foxy tale

Operas tell stories. The Cunning Little Vixen, by Leoš Janáček, is about a crafty female fox who escapes from a forester and has many exciting adventures.

Tuneful tenor

Luciano Pavarotti was one of the world's greatest tenors. He had a powerful and beautiful voice.

Operas are mostly sung in Italian, French, or German.

Powerful lungs enable the singers to sing without a microphone!
