

United States

Jeans are made of tough material called denim.

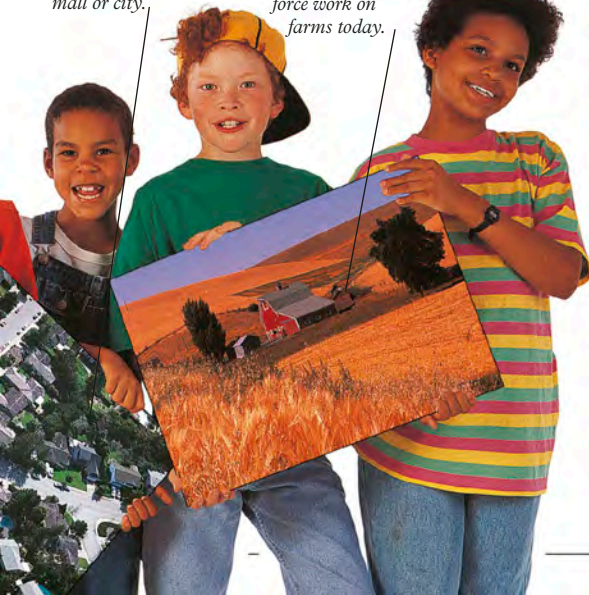

American icon

Jeans are an American invention. The first pair was made in 1874 by Levi Strauss. Jeans are now one of the most popular pieces of clothing ever invented, and Levi jeans are still sold all around the world today.

Many American children grow up in suburbs. It is easy to drive from the suburb to the nearest shopping mall or city.

More corn is grown in America than in any other country. A lot of the farming is done by machines, so less than two percent of the labor force work on farms today.

Drive time

America is a huge country, and many Americans are used to driving long distances to visit friends or family. Driving is a popular American pastime. Large cars are not as fashionable as they used to be. This is because smaller cars use up less gasoline and are better for the environment.

Native American Languages Act

In 1990, Congress made it US policy to "preserve, protect, and promote the rights and freedom of Native Americans to use, practice, and develop Native American languages."
