

Take your pick

These Portuguese farmers grow oranges, lemons, and olives. Orchards of sweet, juicy oranges are a common sight in the countryside of southwest Portugal.

Fire dance

Flamenco dancing was developed many hundreds of years ago by the gypsies of Andalusia. It is still popular all over Spain. Many Spanish children learn the dance from a young age, and enjoy wearing the colorful flamenco costumes.

First communion

Most Spanish people are Roman Catholics. From the age of seven or eight, children are taught the main beliefs of the Catholic church, and are ready to take their first communion at the age of 10. The ceremony is a religious and social occasion—an important event for the entire family.

Andorra

Portugal

Spain

City of seven hills

Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, is one of the smallest capitals in Europe. It is built on seven steep hills. Old electric trams carry the townspeople up and down the sloping streets.

Eating around Spain

Here are some tasty dishes from different regions of Spain.

Gazpacho—cold tomato soup from Andalusia

Cocido—meat stew from Castile and Extremadura

Zarzuela de Pescado—seafood stew from Catalonia

Paella—chicken, seafood, and rice from Valencia

Doughnuts—a popular treat all over Spain

