

Red-shanked douc

Bright red legs give this eye-catching monkey its name. It lives high in the trees of Vietnamese rain forests.

Golden Bridge

Two big stone hands support this scenic walkway in the hills near Da Nang. People walk on the bridge at a height of 4,590 ft (1,400 m).

Hanoi Train Street

Twice a day, a train speeds through this narrow, residential street in Hanoi's Old Quarter. Locals stay clear of the tracks for their own safety.

Ha Long Bay

Rocky limestone islands covered in rain forest dot the waters of this bay near Hai Phong in northeastern Vietnam. Tourists visit this popular spot on daily boat trips.

Vietnam

Rice terraces

Rice is an important crop in Southeast Asia. It is grown in wet paddy fields or on steplike "terraced" fields in hilly areas. Vietnam ranks among the world's top five rice producers.

Noodle soup

Every region of Vietnam has a different recipe for making pho—a traditional noodle soup made with broth, meat, and herbs.

- 📏 127,880 sq miles (331,210 sq km)
- 👤 98.7 million
- ★ Hanoi
- 🗣️ Vietnamese, other languages (+8)

Vietnam lies on the eastern edges of the Southeast Asian peninsula. There are mountains to the north and central highlands. To the south of Ho Chi Minh City, the Mekong River ends its 2,800-mile (4,500 km) journey across Asia in a vast, fertile delta.