

Australia

Paradise for beachgoers

Millions of surfers flock to the Gold Coast and Sunshine Coast in the east to ride the waves.

Road train

Long trucks called "road trains" haul supplies vast distances across Australia. Some measure more than 164 ft (50 m) long.

Sacred rock

At the heart of Australia, near the remote town of Alice Springs, lies Uluru, an ancient sandstone rock sacred to the Aboriginal people. During sunrise and sunset, the sunlight gives it a reddish glow.

Flying doctors

Medics take to the skies in light aircraft to provide emergency care to people living in remote regions of the Outback.

INDIAN OCEAN

Indigenous art

For centuries, Aboriginal artists have painted elements from their sacred tales called dreamtime stories. The artist June Smith stands in front of her work Flowers After the Rain.

Australia is the biggest island on Earth. Situated in the southern hemisphere, it is the largest nation in Oceania and the world's sixth-largest country. Much of Australia is desert, so people live in coastal towns and cities. The hot, dry areas in the interior are known as the Outback.

- 📏 2,988,901 sq miles (7,741,220 sq km)
- 👤 25.5 million
- ★ Canberra
- 🗣️ English, other languages (+6)