

Guadeloupe

- 👤 Population: 406,000
- 📏 Area: 629 sq miles (1,628 sq km)

This archipelago lies within the Lesser Antilles chain of islands in the Caribbean Sea. The two main islands of Basse-Terre and Grand-Terre are linked by a bridge over the Salée River.

La Soufrière volcano on Basse-Terre is the highest peak in the Lesser Antilles.

Martinique

- 👤 Population: 376,000
- 📏 Area: 436 sq miles (1,128 sq km)

This volcanic Caribbean island in the Lesser Antilles is some 4,400 miles (7,000 km) from France. Its French heritage is seen in the style of the buildings in its capital, Fort-de-France.

Mayotte

- 👤 Population: 270,300
- 📏 Area: 144 sq miles (374 sq km)

In the Indian Ocean, northwest of Madagascar, is the Mayotte archipelago. These picturesque islands have lush rain forest and mountains, and their coral reefs are popular with divers.

New Caledonia

- 👤 Population: 290,000
- 📏 Area: 7,172 sq miles (18,575 sq km)

About one-quarter of the world's reserves of the metal nickel are found in New Caledonia, a chain of islands in the South Pacific.

Réunion

- 👤 Population: 859,000
- 📏 Area: 970 sq miles (2,512 sq km)

One of the world's most active volcanoes, Piton de la Fournaise, meaning "Peak of the Furnace" in French, is situated on this island.

St. Barthélemy

- 👤 Population: 7,100
- 📏 Area: 9.5 sq miles (25 sq km)

Nicknamed St. Barts, this Caribbean island is a luxury holiday destination with white, sandy beaches and smart hotels.

St. Martin

- 👤 Population: 32,600
- 📏 Area: 21 sq miles (54 sq km)

This northeast Caribbean island is a French territory on the north side, while the south side (Sint-Maarten) is Dutch.

St. Pierre and Miquelon

- 👤 Population: 5,300
- 📏 Area: 93.5 sq miles (242 sq km)

Off the Canadian Atlantic Ocean lies an archipelago of eight French islands. Busy St. Pierre is home to most of the population, while Miquelon is a quiet haven for whales and seals.

Wallis and Futuna

- 👤 Population: 15,900
- 📏 Area: 55 sq miles (142 sq km)

These two small, remote volcanic islands lie in the South Pacific Ocean. Although they are governed by France, their Polynesian customs and communities are strong and diverse.

The Netherlands

Aruba

- 👤 Population: 119,400
- 📏 Area: 69 sq miles (180 sq km)

The picturesque island of Aruba lies off the Venezuelan coast in the Caribbean Sea.

Bonaire

- 👤 Population: 20,000
- 📏 Area: 113 sq miles (294 sq km)

With its coral reefs, diverse marine life, and sandy beaches, the Caribbean island of Bonaire is popular with divers and snorkelers.

Curaçao

- 👤 Population: 151,400
- 📏 Area: 171 sq miles (444 sq km)

This long, flat Caribbean island has a bustling coastal capital called Willemstad. The city's historic center boasts old Dutch-style buildings.

Willemstad—the colorful capital of Curaçao

Saba

- 👤 Population: 1,900
- 📏 Area: 5 sq miles (13 sq km)

The dormant volcano Mount Scenery lies at the heart of this tiny rain forest island in the Caribbean Sea. The Saba Marine Park protects the island's coral reefs and seagrass beds from damage by fishing, diving, and dumped waste.

Sint-Eustatius

- 👤 Population: 3,000
- 📏 Area: 8 sq miles (21 sq km)

Sint-Eustatius is a small island 16 miles (26 km) from Saba composed of two extinct volcanoes. Turtles nest on its beaches. This Caribbean island can be hit by tropical storms.

Sint-Maarten

- 👤 Population: 43,800
- 📏 Area: 13 sq miles (34 sq km)

Sint-Maarten is on the south side of the island that it shares with St. Martin (a French territory). Its bustling capital, Philipsburg, is popular with tourists on passing cruise ships.