

Cayman Islands

- 👤 Population: 62,000
- 📏 Area: 102 sq miles (264 sq km)

The three islands of Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac, and Little Cayman make up this territory in the Caribbean Sea. It is famous for its financial services and for being a tax-free haven.

Falkland Islands

- 👤 Population: 3,200
- 📏 Area: 4,700 sq miles (12,173 sq km)

Off the coast of Argentina in the Atlantic Ocean, this archipelago consists of two main islands and 776 smaller isles.

Gibraltar

- 👤 Population: 30,000
- 📏 Area: 2.5 sq miles (6.5 sq km)

Gibraltar covers a tiny area on the south coast of Spain. This self-governing British territory is world famous for the mighty Rock of Gibraltar, a limestone rock 1,398 ft (426 m) tall.

Guernsey

- 👤 Population: 67,000
- 📏 Area: 25 sq miles (65 sq km)

Guernsey is the second-largest of the Channel Islands in the English Channel. It has thousands of Guernsey cows known for their creamy milk.

Isle of Man

- 👤 Population: 90,500
- 📏 Area: 221 sq miles (572 sq km)

In the Irish Sea off the northwest coast of England lies the rugged Isle of Man. This hilly island hosts the world-famous Tourist Trophy (TT) motorcycle races every year.

The TT courses are famous for being hazardous.

Jersey

- 👤 Population: 101,000
- 📏 Area: 45 sq miles (116 sq km)

Lying close to the north coast of France, Jersey is the largest of the British Channel Islands. It is known for its historic castles, Jersey cows, and tunnels that date from World War II.

Montserrat

- 👤 Population: 5,400
- 📏 Area: 39 sq miles (102 sq km)

Named Montserrat by explorer Christopher Columbus in 1493, this Caribbean island has been an English territory since the 17th century. Since 1995, eruptions from the Soufrière Hills volcano have forced many islanders to leave.

Pitcairn Islands

- 👤 Population: 50
- 📏 Area: 18 sq miles (47 sq km)

In 1789, British sailors on board the HMS Bounty staged a mutiny and settled on the remote, mid-Pacific Pitcairn Island. By 1838, Pitcairn and three surrounding islands had become a British territory.

St. Helena

- 👤 Population: 6,000
- 📏 Area: 47 sq miles (122 sq km)

This volcanic island in the south Atlantic Ocean is rich in wildlife. French military commander Napoleon Bonaparte was in exile on St. Helena for six years until his death in 1821.

South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands

- 👤 Population: 0
- 📏 Area: 1,506 sq miles (3,903 sq km)

This group of southern Atlantic Ocean islands was claimed by British navigator James Cook in the 18th century. South Georgia is a haven for penguins, albatrosses, and elephant seals.

Tristan da Cunha

- 👤 Population: 260
- 📏 Area: 38 sq miles (98 sq km)

The remote location of Tristan da Cunha in the Atlantic Ocean has attracted rare wildlife to these six tiny islands.

Turks and Caicos Islands

- 👤 Population: 55,900
- 📏 Area: 366 sq miles (948 sq km)

Forty tropical islands form this archipelago in the Atlantic Ocean. Tourism, fishing, and financial services are important for its economy.

United States of America

American Samoa

- 👤 Population: 49,400
- 📏 Area: 86 sq miles (224 sq km)

These islands were formed relatively recently—within the last seven million years—by volcanic activity.

Pink coral, American Samoa