

Venezuela

South America

Iglesia de San Francisco

One of the best-known churches of Caracas, Iglesia de San Francisco is dedicated to Saint Francis of Assisi.

Angel Falls

With a spectacular drop of 3,212 ft (979 m), Angel Falls is the world's highest waterfall.

The Orinoco River is one of the largest in South America and flows for more than 1,243 miles (2,000 km).

Cacao beans

Venezuela is known for its fine chocolate, made from cacao beans grown in plantations.

Dancing devils

In a popular religious celebration, held on the annual Catholic festival of Corpus Christi, people dress up as masked devils and dance through the streets.

Record-breaking rodent

The world's biggest rodent is the capybara, a relative of the guinea pig. It is a good swimmer and lives on the country's lakes and rivers.

- 352,144 sq miles (912,050 sq km)
- 28.6 million
- Caracas
- Spanish, Amerindian languages

Situated on the northern Caribbean coast of South America, Venezuela has beaches, mountains, and tropical forests. The country is rich in natural resources, including oil.