

Africa

Morocco

The red on the flag stands for strength and bravery.

Two tagines

The special lidded clay pot and the tasty stew of meat and vegetables slowly cooked inside it are both called "tagine."

The Atlas Mountains span 1,600 miles (2,500 km) from Morocco across Algeria to Tunisia.

Valley of roses

The M'goun Valley in the Atlas Mountains is home to the wild roses of Morocco. Up to 4,400 tons of roses are grown here every year for the global perfume industry.

- 172,414 sq miles (446,550 sq km)
- 35.6 million
- Rabat
- Arabic, Tamazight (Berber), French

Morocco has both a Mediterranean and an Atlantic coast and sandy desert dunes. Its cities are famous for their walled, mazelike medina quarters, while traditional villages and ski resorts nestle in its high mountains.

Algeria

The crescent moon and star is a symbol of the Islamic faith.

Desert fox

The fennec fox lives in the Sahara Desert. This nocturnal hunter uses its large, batlike ears to give off body heat and keep cool in the desert.

- 919,595 sq miles (2,381,740 sq km)
- 43 million
- Algiers
- Arabic, other languages (+4)

Algeria is the largest country in Africa and sits between the Mediterranean Sea and the Sahara Desert. It has vast deposits of oil and natural gas and is among the world's biggest producers of dates.

Martyrs' Memorial

This massive concrete monument has stood tall over the city of Algiers since 1982. It commemorates Algeria's independence from France in 1962.

