

Ghana

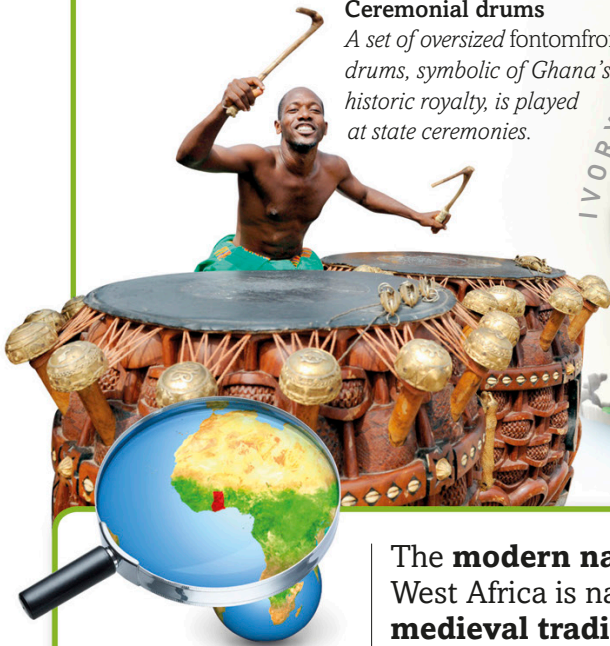

Kente cloth

Garments made from brightly colored kente cloth woven in distinctive patterns were originally worn only by kings.

Ceremonial drums

A set of oversized fongomfom drums, symbolic of Ghana's historic royalty, is played at state ceremonies.

- 92,098 sq miles (238,533 sq km)
- 29.3 million
- Accra
- Twɛ, Fante, Ewe, Ga, other languages (+4)

The modern nation of Ghana in West Africa is named after a great medieval trading empire that existed in the region until the 13th century. Today, it is one of the fastest-growing economies in Africa, thanks to cocoa, gold, wood, and oil.

Abeiku Jackson

In 2016, teenage swimmer Abeiku Jackson competed in the 50 m freestyle event, becoming one of the first two Ghanaian Olympic swimmers.

Ritual masks

Elaborate carved masks, such as this face mask made by the Ashanti people, are worn to represent the spirits of ancestors in ritual dances.

0 50 km
0 50 mile
(approximate scale)

Coffin art

Coffin-making has become an art form, with unique designs—this one a bird.

Labadi Beach

The busiest beach in Ghana is close to the capital city of Accra. Locals flock to Labadi for the spectacular sea and sunshine.

