

West African tree viper
Green, scaly skin camouflages this venomous snake in the leafy undergrowth of Togo's forests.

Teaching science

The MoLab project is a mobile laboratory in Togo designed to help children learn about science and technology via activities and experiments.

- 📏 21,925 sq miles (56,785 sq km)
- 👤 8.6 million
- ★ Lomé
- 🌐 Ewe, Kabye, Gurma, French

Togo

Africa

Takienta houses

In the Koutammakou region, the Batammariba people build thatched tower houses.

On Africa's west coast, Togo is a narrow country with a short coastal strip. Sandy beaches dominate the coastline against a backdrop of rolling hillsides. The capital, Lomé, is a thriving coastal city.

Angélique Kidjo

This celebrated Beninese singer is popular throughout Africa and has won three Grammy Awards for her musical talent.

Fon silverwork

During the 18th and 19th centuries, the Fon people of Benin shaped silver into exquisite objects, such as this buffalo.

0 50 km
0 50 miles
(approximate scale)

The port city of Porto-Novo is located on the banks of the Yewa River.

Benin

Dantokpa market

The biggest open-air market in West Africa is held at Cotonou. On sale is an eclectic mix of goods, from wood carving to fruit.

- 📏 43,484 sq miles (112,622 sq km)
- 👤 12.9 million
- ★ Porto-Novo
- 🌐 Fon, Bariba, other languages (+5)

Mountains, forests, and beaches make up the varied landscape of Benin. Historically, this African nation was known for master craftspeople who excelled at shaping wood, ivory, and silver.