

Tanzania

Africa

Dar es Salaam

Overlooking the Indian Ocean, Dar es Salaam is the largest city and port of Tanzania. Its name means "Abode of Peace" in Arabic.

Black-capped social weaver
Shrubland in East Africa is home to these gregarious birds. They live in colonies, building nests that hang from the branches of acacia trees.

Tanzanite

The striking blue gemstone called tanzanite is very rare and can be mined only in the Mierani hills near Arusha.

Maasai people

Around a million Maasai people live across Tanzania and Kenya. These nomadic hunters and cattle herders wear distinctive shuka blankets and jewelry.

Spice island

Zanzibar was a longtime center for Indian, Persian, and Arab trade with the African continent. It still exports spices, such as cloves, from its harbor.

- 365,755 sq miles (947,300 sq km)
- 58.6 million
- Dodoma
- Kiswahili, Sukuma, Chagga, others (+6)

Mount Kilimanjaro

At 19,341 ft (5,895 m), this dormant volcano is the highest peak in Africa.

Tanzania is a land of high mountains, lush coastal plains, savanna, and the Zanzibar archipelago. The Serengeti National Park is known for its herds of migratory zebras and wildebeest, while the volcanic crater of Ngorongoro Park is home to rhinos and elephants.