

Eswatini

Swazi Cultural Village

In this living museum near Lobamba, the traditional Swazi way of life is on display in huts containing local artifacts. Village people introduce visitors to their customs.

- 📏 6,704 sq miles (17,364 sq km)
- 👤 1.1 million
- ★ Mbabane, Lobamba
- 🗣️ English, siSwati, isiZulu, Xitsonga

Eswatini was known as Swaziland until the king renamed it in 2018. One of Africa's smallest countries, it has two capitals: Mbabane and Lobamba, home to the parliament and royal family. Its reserves are known for big mammals and birds.

Sibebe Rock

At 4,882 ft (1,488 m) tall, Sibebe Rock is the world's largest granite dome. Its nickname is "bald rock."

Manzini market

The best-known market in Eswatini is held weekly in Manzini. Local sellers trade handicrafts such as painted fabrics, wooden sculptures, woven baskets, and pottery.

Lesotho

Spiral aloe

The spiny leaves of this succulent plant grow in a spiral-shaped pattern. It is native to the Drakensberg Mountains.

Horseback rider

Many mountain villages can be reached only on horseback. Riders often wear a conical Basotho hat woven from reeds.

- 📏 11,720 sq miles (30,355 sq km)
- 👤 2 million
- ★ Maseru
- 🗣️ Sesotho, English, isiZulu

Musicians play oil-can guitars and drum and the accordion.

Basotho blankets

The Basotho people handcraft traditional woolen blankets that they wear for warmth in the cold winters of Lesotho's highlands.

Located entirely more than 4,590 ft (1,400 m) above sea level, Lesotho is known as the "Kingdom in the Sky." Surrounded by South Africa on all sides, the country has a dramatic landscape of mountains and rivers.

