

Canada and Alaska

Canada is the second-largest country in the world, and Alaska is the largest of all the US states. Despite their huge size, both places have small populations because much of the land is covered in thick forest or frozen for most of the year.

The Trans-Alaskan Pipeline

The USA's largest oil-drilling area is in Alaska. A huge overground pipeline, 1,287 km (800 miles) long, carries the oil from Prudhoe Bay to the port of Valdez.
