

Two million years ago

The passing of millions of years has seen mountain ranges rising above the fossilized T. rex, but gradually they are being worn down by extreme weather.

Last year

The area around the fossil is now a desert. Two walkers investigate further when they see the exposed tip of a fossilized bone.

Today

Palaeontologists are now hard at work, uncovering the rest of the T. rex. The bones will be removed one by one. The skeleton may end up in a museum.

