

Why is space so dark?

Space is black because there is nothing there to reflect light. From space, Earth looks lit up because light from our Sun reflects off sea, and land, and the particles in our atmosphere.

American astronaut Michael Gernhardt went on four separate space missions, and spent more than 23 hours walking around in space.

Curiosity quiz

Look through The Universe section and see if you can identify the pictures below.

Become an expert

274-275 Milky Way

276-277 Rockets