

Astronomers think the Milky Way is a
barred spiral galaxy.

We are here!

It takes light 100,000
years to pass from one
edge of the Milky Way
to the other.

They lie towards its centre, often in giant balls called globular clusters.