

New Zealand and the Pacific

Hundreds of islands are scattered across the Pacific Ocean. Two of the biggest form the mountainous country of New Zealand.

Maori war dance

Most people in New Zealand are European, but about one in ten are Maoris – New Zealand's native people. On special occasions, Maoris paint their faces and perform a war dance called a haka.

Extreme sports

New Zealand is the world capital for extreme sports. Bungee jumping, sky diving, and white-water rafting are all popular.

Moving house

Earthquakes are common in New Zealand, so people live in wooden houses for safety. When people move home, they can carry their house away on a lorry.
