

Location

Central America connects North and South America. Its tropical climate is ideal for plants and the animals that depend on them.

HABITAT KEY

- Mangroves
- Mountains
- Coniferous forests
- Tropical forests
- Deciduous forests

SCALE

0 100 miles
0 100 kilometers

Central America

Seven countries make up the narrow strip of land that is Central America. More than 1,500 different species of birds live here, and many more animals find food and shelter in its warm rain forests.

Ocelot

This fast cat's super sight and hearing help it hunt rabbits and other small animals at night. During the day it rests in the trees, where its markings blend in among the leaves.

