

SCALE

0 100 miles
0 100 kilometers

When threatened, the mountain weasel scares away predators with a foul-smelling spray called musk.

Mountain weasel

Pandas are the only bears that eat just plants.

ALTUN MOUNTAINS

CHINA

Bearded vulture

This bird picks up bones in its claws and carries them high into the air. It then drops the bones on rocks to shatter them into bite-sized pieces.

Chiru

The chiru is a type of antelope. It has soft wool, called shahtoosh, which is very good at keeping it warm through winter.

This very rare fox hunts rodents and lizards. Its slitlike eyes help to lessen glare from the sun.

Tibetan sand fox

Also called the Himalayan blue sheep, the bharal has a bluish sheen to its gray coat. This makes it hard for its enemies to see it against rocky cliffs.

Bharal

Kiang

Herds of kiang can have as many as 400 animals. When they travel, kiangs follow their female leader in single file.

Tibetan toad

This toad is one of the very few amphibians that are able to live so high up.

Thimphu

BHUTAN

BANGLADESH

MYANMAR

Red panda

This raccoonlike animal is also called the "fire fox" or "fire cat" due to its striking red fur.

Snow leopard

These cats have a thick, spotted coat that keeps them warm and helps them blend in when hunting. They keep their face warm when they sleep by covering it with their furry tail.

