

290 warehouses; 254 corn mills; 1,797 houses owned by wealthy citizens; 46,602 apartments and small houses; and, bottom of the list, 144 public lavatories!

Map of stone

Just like day's great cities, tourists visited Rome and were amazed

WEIRD WORLD

THE COLOSSEUM TOOK ITS NAME FROM A 120-FT (37-M) HIGH COLOSSUS, OR GIGANTIC STATUE, OF EMPEROR NERO THAT STOOD BESIDE IT.

by what they saw. To guide them, a "street map," known as the Forma Urbis, was put up in a prominent place. Measuring an enormous 60×45 ft (18×14 m), it was carved onto rectangular marble slabs between 203 CE and 211 CE. Every street, building, room, and staircase in Rome was shown on it.

Unfortunately for us, this unique map got smashed to pieces long ago. Archaeologists have so far found 1,163 pieces of it. But this amounts to a mere 15 percent of the total, so 85 percent of the map is still missing. The hunt is on to find the rest of this giant jigsaw!

EACH YEAR, 7 MILLION TOURISTS VISIT THE COLOSSEUM, WHICH STILL TOWERS OVER THE CENTER OF ROME.
