

and she knew this meant her father. Her mother said sadly they would “have to make the best of it.”

Elizabeth, in her calm and matter-of-fact way, sat down to make notes on her lifeguard training. She headed the page “Abdication Day.” Later, seeing a letter addressed to “HM (Her Majesty) the Queen,” she said, “That’s Mummy now, isn’t it?” When Elizabeth told Margaret that their father was king, Margaret asked, “Does that mean that you will have to be the next queen?” Elizabeth said it did. “Poor you,” her sister replied.

Edward left Britain, and his family, at once. After marrying Wallis he lived abroad as the Duke of Windsor. Elizabeth’s father chose not to keep his own name as king, but be called George VI. After Christmas, he moved with his family into Buckingham Palace. It was chilly in the

Buckingham Palace

